WHEN TO USE?

The future continuous tense is used to talk about actions that will be in progress at a specific time in the future.

It's formed using "will be" + the present participle (verb + -ing).

Subject + will be + Verb (ing) + Object

SENTENCE STRUCTURE

I	will be	working	tomorrow afternoon
You	will be	eating	Pizza at 9pm
We	will be	watching	Soccer from 9am to 10pm
They	will be	running	next week
He	will be	writing	the whole night
She	will be	cooking	from 6am to 7am
It	will be	catching	fish tomorrow

Fill in the blanks

- This time tomorrow, I _____ (relax) on the beach.
- They _____ (study) for the exam when you arrive.
- The children _____ (play) in the park while we have dinner.
- She _____ (work) late tonight to finish the project.
- We _____ (watch) a movie when you call.

Use Future Continuous

Scenario

The new project deadline is looming, and things are getting hectic. This time tomorrow, I _____ (do) a mountain of paperwork. My team members _____ (work) diligently on their assigned tasks. The project manager _____ (coordinate) the entire process, making sure everything runs smoothly. It's going to be a long night, but hopefully, we will be able to finish everything on time and celebrate with a well-deserved pizza party.

Use Future Continuous

Imagine it's the day of a major product launch. The marketing team _____ (check) social media for feedback and trends. The sales department _____ (get) calls from excited customers and potential clients. The engineers will be on standby to address any technical issues. Meanwhile, the CEO _____ (give) interviews and presentations to the press, highlighting the product's innovative features. It's going to be a whirlwind of activity!
